

Hello, dear HR Manager!

My name is Artyom Radchuk, I am 23 years old.

Working at the bank, I improved my communication skills, increased my financial literacy and understood how the bank works from the inside.

I got interested in programming when I received an offer from OJSC "ASB Belarusbank" to try myself in the digital transformation department. Due to certain circumstances, it did not work out to try your luck. I decided for myself that in a year I will seriously start programming.

I started getting acquainted with programming by watching lectures of the Harvard course on the basics of programming. After watching the course of lectures, I started studying HTML and CSS. Gradually, I began to master JS. After a certain period of time, I noticed that they were recruiting for an online internship at Orangesoft, having a knowledge base, I decided to try my hand to consolidate the accumulated skills and gain experience. At the same time, I took video courses on JS. Not having sufficient knowledge of React/Redux, I left Orangesoft Internship at the last stages. In the future, I moved on to improving the React/Redux skills by reading the documentation and taking a video course on the channel "it-kamasutra" The Way of the Samurai.

Independent learning has developed my ability to organize myself, but I do not have enough experience working on a real project for further development. This will help me understand how the industry works from the inside and gain knowledge from professionals. Please consider my candidacy for your company.

Sincerely, Artyom Radchuk!
